Notes of Decisions*Search and Seizure*

Warrantless seizure of a radar detector would have been permissible under the plain view doctrine when the officer, who responded to a dispatch informing him of an accident and who approached a truck involved in the accident to assure that the emergency brake was set, viewed the radar detector on the truck's dashboard from his lawful vantage point outside of the truck; the seizure was not rendered impermissible because it was delayed until a time when the truck was impounded. Commonwealth v. Petroll, 738 A.2d 993 (Pa. 1999).

Notes of Decisions

Search and Seizure

The police lacked a reasonable basis to conduct a seizure and search of a driver's logbook, a bank bag, which contained toll receipts, and a brown bag, which contained shipping invoices and other documents, where, in view of the fact that the police had detained the driver and were planning to impound his tractor-trailer, the police had already taken a potentially dangerous vehicle and driver off the road. *Commonwealth v. Notes of Decisions*Search and Seizure*

The police lacked a reasonable basis to conduct a seizure and search of a driver's logbook, a bank bag, which contained toll receipts, and a brown bag, which contained shipping invoices and other documents, where, in view of the fact that the police had detained the driver and were planning to impound his tractor-trailer, the police had already taken a potentially dangerous vehicle and driver off the road. Commonwealth v. Petroll, 738 A.2d 993 (Pa. 1999).
